PEACEFUL REST.

Funeral Ceremony Over the Remains Of ### CHARLES STEWART PARNELL.

No Disturbance Occurs to Mar the Solemnity of the Occasion—Thousands of People View the Remains While Lying in State in the Dublin Council Chamber.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The remains of Parnell arrived at Kingston at 7 a. m. yesterday. There was no demonstration along the line from London until Chester was reached, when deputations from Liverpool, Manchester, Preston and Newcastle, all destined for Dublin, joined the train. The parliamentary colleagues of Mr. Parnell were among the people that greeted the deputations on their arrival at Holyhead, where the train arrived at 2 o'clock in the morning, in wet and hazy weather.

Groups were collected on the quay to watch the transfer of the coffin from the train to the mail boat Ireland. The case was borne on the shoulders of seamen to the side of the vessel and down the double gangway into the ship. The coffin was deposited in an enclosure specially fitted up for it. Throughout the voyage some of the Parnellites were all the time on guard over the remains of their beloved leader. Among the watchers was the lord mayor of Dublin, High Sheriff Meade and J. H. Parnell, brother of the departed.

The boat made the passage in a gale of wind and rain. At the Kingston pier a multitude was gathered to receive the remains. With the Irish members who had followed the body from England, the group at Kingston included nearly every parliamentary adherent of Parnell. They all gathered around the coffin in absolute silence, unbroken even by the exchange of friendly greetings, until after the remains had been transferred to the carriage of the train for Dublin.

The Westland Row station in Dublin was reached at 7:30 a. m. A vast silent crowd awaited with uncovered heads as the train steamed into the station. Conspicuous in front of the dense masses of people were members of the Gaelic and Athletic societies, with their hurlers used in their sports draped black and tied with green ribbon. The representatives of branches of the National league wore black badges, on which were the dying words of Parnell: "Give my love to my colleagues and the Irish nation."

When the remains had been removed from the train the coffin was taken from the case that enveloped it and lifted into the hearse, the glass panels of which permitted a full exposure of the coffin to public view. The wreaths and other floral tributes covered the top of the hearse and were heaped about the coffin. The case in which the coffin had been enclosed on the way to Dublin was laid aside. The crowd immediately seized upon and broke it into small pieces to carry away as mementoes of the dead.

When the hearse moved from the station a body of police before the procession which, without any design or marshalling, appeared to fall into an orderly line in purely extemporized fashion. A band and the workingmen's union followed next after the police, the band playing the "Dead March in Saul." Then came the Gaelic and athletic societies with their hurlers reversed, after the manner of soldiers carrying reversed arms. As the march progressed the crowds grew denser and yet they kept clear of the line of the procession, along the whole route to Castle Hill, where the serried ranks of the people occupied every inch of space.

The city hall of Dublin was reached at 8:30 a. m. The front of the hall was covered with sombre draperies, and a dense rain streamed down as the coffin was borne into the hall toward the catafalque. The rain kept pouring in pitiless torrents for hour after hour, but it did not diminish the vast concourse that thronged toward the hall, ignoring the elements in their anxiety to show their esteem for their beloved leader.

It was an assemblage of remarkable serenity. Reverential quiet pervaded the crowd, unbroken by partisan cries, or the remotest symptom of tendency to disorder.

At 10 o'clock the gates were opened, and the people poured into the interior. The body lay in state in the council chamber, a large circular room, now heavily draped in black, relieved by scrolls of white satin in looped festoons, bearing in black letters the last words of Parnell. The coffin, which rested on a raised dais in the center of the chamber, was buried under masses of wreaths, floral crosses, Irish harps and other floral designs.

Conspicuous on the coffin were three wreaths from Mrs. Parnell, a cross and anchor and circle, with inscriptions. The outer inscription was "My own true love; my best, truest friend; my husband from his heart-broken wife," and the innermost inscription, "My dear love, my husband, my king, from his heart-broken wife." There were also two beautiful little wreaths from Mrs. Parnell's daughters with the words: "From little Clare to my dear mother's husband," and "From little Kitty to my dear mother's husband."

From 10 o'clock until 2 a continuous stream of people poured into the city hall. It is estimated that the people who paid their last tribute of respect to the dead leader numbered at least 40,000. Nearly all were in the deepest mourning, the men wearing a band of black crape interwoven with green ribbon on the arm, and a large proportion of the women also wearing a similar sign of grief. The ceremony of lying in state was intended to close at noon, but the crowd continued so numerous that it was after 2 o'clock when the doors were shut.

At 2:45 the funeral cortège started for the grave in Glasnevin cemetery. It was led by the executive of the Parnell leadership committee and following came the bier drawn by six black horses. Surrounding the bier were the parliamentary colleagues of Parnell. Parnell's favorite horse followed the bier. Then came a strong body of Gaels, headed by James Stephens, the famous Fenian organizer; John O'Leary, the well known advocate of an Irish republic, and other prominent features of the profession were John O'Connor, member of parliament, leading by the arm the blind member, Mr. W. A. MacDonald, of Ossory; Parnell's brother and sister, and then the lord mayor of Dublin, in official state, preceded by the city marshal, and sword and mace bearers. Next came the representatives of the corporations of the principal Irish towns, and the various trade societies, then the Farmers, the Home Rulers and a line of private carriages.

As the procession started the rain ceased and the sun came out. The procession wended its way to the cemetery. Perfect order prevailed, although the vast line of mourners surpassed in numbers any spectacle ever seen in Dublin. No systematic plan seemed to regulate the multitude, yet some fine instinct of reverential order prevailed everywhere and gave the march an aspect of drilled regularity.

At the cemetery crowds had all day been inspecting the turf-lined tomb, guarded by a small group of police. When the first part of the procession reached the lower gate of the cemetery at 5 o'clock, it was found impossible to penetrate the dense masses assembled there and after a struggle the police had to abandon the effort to make a way through the crowd and the hearse was conducted to the upper gate. The coffin was removed and placed on a platform, especially constructed in such a way that the procession could file around it and have a view of the bier.

At 6 o'clock, when dusk was fast falling on the scene, the procession was still filing around the bier; so orders were given to remove the coffin to the side of the grave. A body of Gaels cleared the way to the grave, and formed a circle within which the Lord Mayor and civic dignitaries, and Parnell's colleagues and relatives stationed themselves. The Rev. Mr. Vincent, of the Rotunda chapel, the Rev. George Fry, the Irish Protestant clergyman, from Manchester, England, were the officiating clergymen. It was 7 o'clock when the mourners started to return to the city.

Condition of Mrs. Parnell.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Advices from Brighton say that Mrs. Parnell's condition is pitiable, and grows worse instead of improving. Immediately after Parnell's death she was in better condition than now; for although she fainted, she recovered sufficiently to have some communication with friends, and, through their medium, with the outside world.

She has been growing worse every day until now she only means in reply to questions, and is unable or refuses to speak. The doctors who are in attendance greatly fear that her condition may grow more critical, and are doing everything possible to restore her, but apparently without effect. The only intelligible sounds that she has uttered in hours have been plaintive cries for her husband.

When the remains had been removed from the train the coffin was taken from the case that enveloped it and lifted into the hearse, the glass panels of which permitted a full exposure of the coffin to public view. The wreaths and other floral tributes covered the top of the hearse and were heaped about the coffin. The case in which the coffin had been enclosed on the way to Dublin was laid aside. The crowd immediately seized upon and broke it into small pieces to carry away as mementoes of the dead.

When the hearse moved from the station a body of police before the procession which, without any design or marshalling, appeared to fall into an orderly line in purely extemporized fashion. A band and the workingmen's union followed next after the police, the band playing the "Dead March in Saul." Then came the Gaelic and athletic societies with their hurlers reversed, after the manner of soldiers carrying reversed arms. ### EVENING BULLETIN.

DAILY, EXCEPT SUNDAY.
ROSSER & McCARTHY,
Proprietors.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1891.

DECORATE the city from one end to the other, and let us appear in our brightest colors this week.

THE New York Recorder, which first published the lies about Governor Campbell's financial standing which the Commercial Gazette reproduced, fully retracts and confesses it was meanly imposed on. Governor Cambell never fails to make his traducers toe the mark.

THE trolley system of electric roads will likely soon be a thing of the past, if the reports from the great and only Edison are correct. It is said he has about perfected a system of furnishing electric car motors with a current from the rails. The saying that "there is nothing new under the sun" doesn't apply to electricity as manipulated by Edison.

SOME papers are already gossiping about the personnel of Kentucky's delegation to the next National Republican convention. They think the Ninth district's delegation will be selected from this list: Judge Thomas, Marshal D. J. Burchett and Captain Lewis Lebus.

The colored brothers say they will have one place on the State delegation or know the reason why. They will not be satisfied with the position of alternate. They claim they have been playing second fiddle long enough.

Here and There.

Mr. A. D. Johnston, of Washington, is the guest of Dr. Reed.

Miss Fuller, of Cincinnati, is the guest of Miss Mamie Archdeacon.

Mr. and Mrs. Earnie White have returned from their bridal trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Bowden, of Flemingsburg, spent Sunday with relatives in this city.

Mr. Tom Browning came in this morning from Baltimore, where he attended the Chancellor-Smith wedding last Wednesday.

Mr. John Conroy, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. James McCloy and children, returned to Mt. Sterling Saturday afternoon, after a pleasant visit with relatives in this city.

Real Estate Transfers.

F. A. Mannen and wife to H. C. Barkley, a house and lot on east side of Sutton street; consideration, $1,000.

W. F. McDaniel and wife to James McDaniel, one-half interest in 97 acres and 15 poles of land on Mill Creek; consideration, $4,000.

MR. THOMAS TYLER has again taken charge of the Germantown omnibus, having bought out Messrs. Coughlin and Porter.

THE public schools of this city will adjourn Wednesday afternoon until Friday to let the pupils enjoy the grand parade on Thursday.

MR. C. P. SKINNER has resigned his position with the Adams Express Company to take charge of the C. & O. ticket office at the Central Hotel.

MRS. LAURA JANUARY WEBB has decided to give two entertainments at the opera house. She will appear Monday night, October 19th, and Monday night, October 26th.

THE Portsmouth Blade is informed that the quail season in Kentucky does not begin until Oct. 20th. If any Portmouth hunters are shooting quail on Kentucky soil they are violating the law.

MR. W. J. CHANCELLOR, one of Shanon's most excellent citizens, wedded Miss Grace Smith of Baltimore last week. They were married Wednesday evening at Emanuel Church, and left next day for New York and Niagara Falls. They are expected home next Thursday.

SAYS the Paris Kentuckian: "The Power Wholesale Grocery Company held a meeting Thursday night and elected the following Directors:—G. C. Lockhart, George Alexander, W. H. Hinton, Frank Armstrong, H. A. Power.

President—G. C. Lockhart.

Treasurer—George Alexander.

Secretary and Manager—H. A. Power."

SAN. FRANCISCO, October 6, 1891.—Seals are now being killed by the hundreds.

One schooner brought into port yesterday over fifteen hundred skins. Every indication of extreme cold weather, the fur being finer than seen for years. The finely finished coal vases, are neater in style and greater in variety, lower in price, at Frank Owens Hard Hardware

Company's than for years. Call and see before purchasing elsewhere. dtf

DR. WILLITS will deliver his popular lecture on "Sunshine" at the High School, October 13th, at 8 p. m. An exchange says: "The Doctor gave the bright, cheerful and sunny phase of human nature, and interspersed his wonderful word-painting by illustrations of the peevish, fretful and morose genius that brought down the house. The lecture is correctly named. It is sunshine, sunshine all over it—teaching gratitude for the past, content with the present and trust (hope) for the future."

A Tobacco Premium.

Premium of $10 for best sample six hands bright leaf tobacco. Award to be made December 15th, 1891.

DULEY & BALDWIN.

A Narrow Escape.

A wreck on the Kentucky Central was narrowly averted Friday. Some section hands were at work on the hill opposite Brodt's, and had most of the spikes drawn from three rails. Their hand-car was on the track just beyond them. Suddenly a special freight train came round the curve. It was impossible to stop in the short distance. The hand-car was smashed to pieces, but fortunately the train passed safely over the rails where the spikes had been drawn. Had it jumped the track it would have landed in the pine below.

For the Farmer.

J. E. Molloy, of Germantown, has sold his fine Burdine harness stallion to John Bradley, of Fairfield, Ill., for a handsome price.

At Lancaster, Pa., tobacco buyers are in the field in large numbers, and numerous sales are being made at from 20 to 30 cents, and even higher figures are being given for exceptionally fine crops.

THE new Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Masons of this State has made the following appointments:

last evening from his home in Ohio County, and with him came twenty-two other members of the order, most of them from Louisville. They are: J. B.

Rock and wife, Gus Manhardt and wife, Geo. L. Smith and wife, Will H. Graham and wife, Mrs. Nannie H. Ross, Miss Tilie McHugh, O. S. Kline, J. F. Mitchell,

Sam Ranzel, J. C. Kelley and daughter,

John Miller, Oliver C. Roll and N. Steinberg, all of Louisville; George Zeller and

George H. Hartman and wife, of Henderson, and T. D. Walker, of Earlington.

The Grand Master and his wife are guests of Past Grand Master Wm. H. Cox, and the rest are at the Central.

This is only the advance guard, as three or four hundred representatives are expected from the various lodges of the State.

The decorations will be on a grand scale. The people are busy hanging out flags, bunting and festoonings, and Maysville will be "dyed" out in gay colors before the close of the day. Let every body decorate.

The grand parade will take place Thursday, and that will be the big day. Dinner will be served at Masonic Temple for all who take part in the parade, and there will be a reception at Oddfellows' Hall that night.

Following are the present officers of the Grand Lodge:

Grand Master—W. G. Duncan, McHenry, Ohio County.

Deputy Grand Master—W. G. Simpson, New Liberty, Owen County.

Grand Warden—B. B. Wilson, of Lexington.

Grand Secretary—William White, of Louisville.

Grand Treasurer—George W. Morris, of Louisville.

Grand Marshal—T. D. Reddick.

Grand Conductor—H. C. Metcalf.

Grand Guardian—G. M. Sanders.

Grand Herald—Byron Rudy.

Grand Chaplain—S. X. Hall.

Grand Messenger—S. C. Cline.

The reports filed at the last annual session give statistics for the year ending December 31, 1889. These reports show there were 674 initiations that year, and 126 admitted by card, and 73 were reinstated.

There were 8,032 members in the State December 31, 1889, and the annual receipts amounted to $53,870.57.

Following are other interesting statistics for the period named:

Insurance.....125,324.38

Total.....$726,894.68

AN excellent suggestion. The Sunday Morning Call says: "The Mayor should see to it that the pavements are kept free of salt barrels, dry goods boxes, and other obstructions this week during the meeting of the Grand Lodges I. O. O. F." And the pavements and the streets should be kept clean also.

MASON COUNTY HORSES.

Result of the Matinee Racing Saturday—Courier Gets a Record of 2:29—Ptolemy 2:54.

At the matinee races at the fair grounds Saturday, Ptolemy, a bay stallion sired by Happy Medium, dam by Mambrino Patchen, won the 3:00 minute trot, taking a record of 2:54. Ptolemy is owned by H. A. Calvert, of Tuckahoe Stock Farm, near Tuckahoe, this county, and is a promising, high-bred young stallion.

Courier, a bay stallion by John Burdine, started to beat his record of 2:39, and did so handsomely, by going in 2:29.

He is owned by Dr. John A. Reed, of this city. This makes the third stallion now owned in Mason County with a record better than 2:30, the others being Alcandre 2:26½ and McAllister 2:27.

So we are advancing each year with our horse interests, in speed as well as breeding.

Courier is a Mason County bred horse, having been bred by Dr. Reed, and we believe is the first Mason County bred horse to take 2:30 honors. His speed was developed at the Limestone Stock Farm.

OCTOBER's gem is the opal. It is emblematic of hope. Ballenger, the jeweler, has a complete line of birthday rings. All the latest novelties in charms, rings and pins.

REV. J. R. HARRISON, of Virginia, will preach at the Baptist Church this afternoon at 3 o'clock and to-night at 7 o'clock.

Also every afternoon and night this week at the hours named. The public cordially invited to hear him.

Mr. W. G. Duncan, of McHenry, Ohio County, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, I. O. O. F., arrived last evening. He is accompanied by his wife, and they are the guests of Past Grand Master William H. Cox and wife.

A convention is to be held at Louisville October 21st and 22nd for purpose of forming a State association of bankers and financial institutions. Delegates attending will be sold tickets by the C. and O. Railway Company at rate of one fare for the round trip.

RIGHT REV. BISHOP C. P. MAES, of Covington, confirmed twenty-three boys and twenty-two girls at St. Patrick's Church yesterday morning. He delivered a very lengthy and instructive discourse to the children, which was listened to very attentively by the large congregation present.

The sinking Fund Commissioners have made the following changes in the penitentiary officials: M. A. Rooney, of Henderson, was appointed as Deputy Warden, vice Sam O. Num sent to Eddyville as Deputy; C. L. Curry, Deputy Warden at

Eddyville, was made Warden; vice J. W.

Marshall removed. Colonel Tom Corbett was made Clerk of the prison at Frankfort, vice W. H. Ellis removed.

THE ENQUIRER compliments Mr. Sydnor

Hall, an ex-Maysvillian, very highly on a paper read at the meeting of the Literary Club of Cincinnati Saturday evening. His subject was "The Railway

Problem," and the Enquirer says: "In a mastery way he traced the wonderful growth of railroads in America from the year 1828, when railroad building began, to the present day. The chief topics treated were the "Inter-State Commerce

Law," "Government Control of Railroads," and "Consolidation of Railroads."
